OUR PRACTICE

Stradley Ronon is a trusted advisor to middle-market private equity funds and their portfolio companies through every stage of the investment life cycle. Our practice focuses on the value-creating transactions of our fund clients, as well as the representation of sponsor-backed portfolio companies. In addition, we advise private equity and other private investment funds on formation, transaction structure and regulatory matters, leveraging the deep industry knowledge of the attorneys in our nationally recognized investment management practice.

YOUR CHALLENGES

We understand the complex challenges our private equity clients face in creating and sustaining equity value. That's why we view our clients as business partners and make their success our goal.

Whether it's on the buy or sell side, transaction costs can significantly impair value, which is why our attorneys are skilled at executing transactions expeditiously and cost-effectively.

That begins with structuring a transaction that is tax-efficient, facilitates effective governance post-closing and enables exit scenarios that maximize the rate-of-return objectives of the client. It also includes efficiently identifying the legal and business risks inherent in an investment transaction, and properly pricing or allocating such risks.

We appreciate the distinct challenges and pressures newly sponsored companies face as they operate with new bank debt and confront recently established growth objectives. Following closing, we are often engaged to assist fund clients in the active management and operation of portfolio companies, including mergers & acquisitions, corporate governance, incentive equity and management compensation, employment matters and credit facility compliance.

OUR EXPERIENCE

Investment Transactions

With decades of collective experience, our seasoned private equity attorneys bring market-informed knowledge to a wide range of sophisticated private equity transactions for an array of private equity funds, including buyout funds in various leveraged acquisitions and recapitalizations, mezzanine funds in subordinated lending and equity financings, and growth equity funds in minority growth investments. In addition, we draw upon the resources and experiences of our professionals across a variety of disciplines, including tax, leveraged finance, employee benefits, intellectual property and environmental law, to provide an integrated approach to executing transactions.

What's more, we recognize we cannot be successful partners without an in-depth understanding of the industries in which our clients operate so that we anticipate and address legal needs as – or before – they emerge. This has enabled us to guide our clients through unique investment challenges in industries such as business services, manufacturing, health care, financial services, consumer products, hospitality, software, technology, education, packaging and distribution.

Leveraged Finance

Our finance attorneys provide sophisticated legal representation to borrowers and lenders in support of leveraged acquisitions and sales in all types of commercial lending transactions, including asset-based, secured and unsecured, cash flow, senior, second lien and mezzanine. Many of these engagements involve complex capital structures, including transactions with senior, second lien, tranche B, mezzanine and subordinated debt components, as well as preferred stock and other equity components.

Portfolio Company Representation

As corporate counsel to a number of portfolio companies, we regularly advise corporate development teams on their merger and acquisition activity, as well as boards of directors and management teams on credit facility compliance, incentive equity arrangements, corporate governance, employment, litigation and general commercial matters.

Fund Formation

We are counsel to a number of fund sponsors in all phases of the fund formation process, including structuring private investment funds, negotiating with lead investors, complying with tax and regulatory concerns, and implementing equity and retention arrangements for fund professionals. In handling these matters, we draw upon the strength of our Investment Management/Mutual Funds Practice Group – recognized as one of the premier practices in the United States – whose attorneys have deep and comprehensive knowledge of private funds and the legal landscape in which they operate.
