

Zoning & Land Use

Stradley Ronon's zoning & land use attorneys regularly appear before and work with municipal governing bodies, planning commissions, historical commissions, zoning boards and other state and local government agencies, including the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection and Pennsylvania Department of Transportation, to obtain approvals and entitlements for commercial, residential, and institutional construction and development projects.

OUR EXPERIENCE

Stradley's attorneys have significant experience working with civic associations, land conservancies, government officials and other stakeholders to quickly resolve issues. Whether the project requires a complete re-zoning or a single dimensional variance, our zoning attorneys know the most effective and efficient means to achieve the necessary result and keep the client's project on track.
